ISSAC LEE, MD

WHY I BECAME A PHYSICIAN

"My desire to become a physician began early. At a young age, I was a bit of a hypochondriac. Whenever I had a symptom, I remember running to read the encyclopedia; concerned that I had some serious disease. I knew this was the start of something. Later in college, I worked at Beckwith Hall, a dormitory for students with disabilities. Through experiences such as this and many others, I was able to use my medical knowledge in a meaningful way to help people, which sealed my decision to become a physician."
